Editor's Note

This Catalogue of rare Filipiniana periodicals of the Miguel de Benavides Library of the University of Santo Tomas covers the time from the beginnings of journalism in the Philippines to 1945 (ca. one hundred years). The Catalogue is incomplete as many issues are missing.

Since most libraries in Manila were destroyed during the liberation of the city in 1945, most of their collections were lost. Fortunately, the University of Santo Tomas which had already been transferred to Sampaloc and transformed into an Interment Camp, was spared together with its library holdings. These are available at the Antonio Vivencio del Rosario UST Heritage Library and in the University Archives.

In the present Catalogue, we do not include issues beyond 1945 because they can be found in other libraries.

The UST Miguel de Benavides Library acknowledges with gratitude the financial aid of the UnionBank of the Philippines through its Chief Executive Officer (CEO), Mr. Justo A. Ortiz and its Corporate Philanthropic and Social Responsibility Director (CPSR) Mrs. Maria Gonzalez-Goolsby for their deep concern for the reprinting of the first three volumes: Volume 1; Volume 2, Part 1; and Volume 3, Part 1; and for the publication of the remaining catalogues: Volume 2, Parts 2 and 3; Volume 4, Part 1 and the UST Archives Catalogue, Volumes 1 and 2.

Sincere gratitude also goes to the following who provided invaluable assistance for the completion of this catalogue: María Luna Vico and Ma. Cristina O. Josue, who assisted us in preparing the technical description of each title; Jenneth G. Capule for the encoding of data; Prof. Emeritus Cristina Pantoja Hidalgo, PhD, who helped us out in the editing; Kristi Ma. Fevie V. Macasaet for the layout of the catalogue and the technical description of some titles; and to the members of the staff who in one way or the other have contributed to the production and publication of this volume.

Introduction

This volume is the sixth of what one does not hesitate to describe as a herculean effort: the effort to catalogue the University of Santo Tomas Heritage Library's vast holdings of rare books and periodicals.

Nor is it a mere listing. Rather, one thinks of the word compendium" (from Latin compendere, which combines com (together) and pendere (weight), literally "what is weighed together").

The first three volumes are: Catalogue of Rare Books, University of Santo Tomas Library, Volume 1: 1492-1600 (2001); Catalogue of Rare Books, University of Santo Tomas Library, Volume 2, Part 1: 1600-1699 (2006); and Catalogue of Rare Books, University of Santo Tomas Library, Volume 3, Part 1, Filipiniana (1610-1945) (2005).

In the Prologue to Volume 2, Part 1, Ms. Estrella S. Majuelo, Chief Librarian of the UST Library, explained that, because of the scope supposed to be covered by this volume, it was decided that it would be divided into three parts, each one covering, respectively, 1600-1699, 1700-1799, and 1800-1899. So, Parts 2 and 3 of Volume 2 are published simultaneously with this volume. Volume 3, Part 1 contains Filipiniana rare books printed before 1945; Volume 3, Part 2 from 1946 onwards will be published in the future. The present catalogue of rare periodicals is Part 1 of Volume 4. It includes newspapers, journals, and magazines printed in the Philippines — mainly by the UST Press. A catalogue of foreign rare periodicals will be published in a separate volume which will form Part 2 of Volume 4.

The present volume is devoted to Rare Periodicals. Each entry contains inclusive years of publication, the name(s) of the editor(s), publisher, size, cost of subscription, holdings when available, a brief summary of its contents, and the condition of the copies. The Catalogue is divided into three sections: Filipiniana Rare Periodicals; UST Publications; and, other titles available in the UST Archives up to 1945.

There is much in these pages to reward scholar and antiquarian. But there is also much to delight the ordinary reader who might be intrigued by the past... beguiled by vanished seasons... by beliefs, practices, songs, stories, lost and forgotten. And there is an additional incentive – the piquant sauce, if you will, that transforms an already tasty spread into a gourmet's feast.

This is the editorial voice – a learned, amiable, animated presence, who seems to invite one to wander at one's leisure through pleasant, tree-shaded paths; an erudite but gentle guide, who hints at hidden treasures, and allows one to pause here and there, as one or the other flowering bush or towering tree catches one's attention and demands closer scrutiny... until one is so engaged, so enchanted, that one longs to make a quick dash to the shelves, and see for oneself.

To my mind, the publications seem to fall roughly within four major categories:

- (1) the very old publications that, by virtue of their age alone, are fascinating, regardless of subject matter;
- (2) the historically important publications which have played a part in the story of the nation;
- (3) the unusual or curious publications whose subject matter arrests the attention so that one feels compelled to seek it out; and,
- (4) publications of interest primarily to specialists.
- The oldest item seems to be Boletín Oficial de Filipinas (1852-1860), about which the Editor notes that "even if this publication is an official bulletin of the government, it appears as a normal newspaper, with official, local and international news…" But, he adds, it also features a serialized Spanish novel.

Another ancient periodical is the Ilustración Filipina (1859, 1860), about which the Editor says that it was significant for Philippine journalism as the first newspaper to feature illustrations along with news articles. It also carried, "biographies, poems, legends, short novels and stories." It would appear that literature was standard fare in these mid- 19th century periodicals.

The Revista de Filipinas (1876-1877) is a magazine of general interest. The list of its contents is a merry mix of news & articles on "saints, marketing, institutions, cuadrilleros, drugs new trees, people, customs, traditions, Tagalog scriptures, Mindoro, ethnography, agriculture, industry, the island of Formosa, military expeditions, economy and sugar."

— Of obvious historical importance, on the other hand, is La Gaceta de Manila (1861-1898), originally called Boletín Oficial de Filipinas. This was the Spanish government's official organ, created by law. It ceased publication 5 days before the Americans occupied the city. In 1902, the Americans revived it, but changed its name to Official Gazette.

Then there is El Correo Sino-Annamita o Correspondencia de las Misiones del Sagrado Orden de Predicadores en China, Tun-King, Formosa, y Japón, published by UST Press. This work consists of the correspondence of the Dominican missionaries assigned to those countries by the Prior Provincial in Manila. The Editor refers to it as an "immense work," adding that it "constitutes the best source of study of the Dominican missions from the middle of the 19th century until the second decade of the 20th century."

El Heraldo de la Revolución (1899) is a Spanish—Tagalog magazine containing official announcements issued by the Filipino Revolutionary Government.

El Renacimiento / Muling Pagsilang (1905-1909), a Spanish-Tagalog newspaper, is the official publication of the "Partido Independentista Immediata" (Immediate Independence Party), edited by Rafael Palma, Teodoro Kalaw, Fidel Reyes, et al. "It was against the economical exploitation of the country," the Editor observes.

Renacimiento Filipino (1910- 1913) edited by Martion Ocampo, seems to have picked up where the precious publication left off, again bi-lingual (Spanish and Tagalog), but a magazine this time, with articles on science, the arts, literature, industry, trade and agriculture. "It exposes abuses & economic exploitation of the constabulary," the Editor says, and then he adds, "Most of the intellectual Filipinos at that time published articles in this paper."

It is, however, La Vanguardia (1941-1944) that the Editor calls "the continuation of El Renacimiento," after the latter was closed down due to libel case. "This was the most influential Spanish paper of the time."

The Philippine Forum (1935-1937), edited by Camilo Osias, is a magazine described by the Catalogue Editor as seeking to "reflect dynamic Filipinism & impress Filipino dynamism on public affairs." He adds the intriguing observation that "it pretends (purports?) to be the vehicle for free expression of thoughts on (or?) views about different problems."

Free Philippines was published by the Philippine Free Press from Feb. 6, 1945 ("a week after American troops entered Manila") to Sept 3, 1945, when the Japanese formally surrendered. "Its aim," the Editor informs one, "was to provide accurate news about the war in the country." And then there is the Guerrilla (1945), a four-page English afternoon paper "described by itself as a 'fearless paper for fearless people."

Again of historical interest is the The Official Journal of the Japanese Military Administration (1942-1943), edited by the Bureau of Publicity, the Department of General Affairs and the Japanese Military Administration. It contained "orders, proclamations, notifications and warning."

And the Woman's Home Journal (1928-1934), edited by Estrella Romualdez, was founded by Paz Marquez Benitez (the Editor reminds us that she is the famous author of "Dead Stars,") and was the country's first women's magazine.

— Under the heading "Unusual or Curious," I would include La Democracia (1906-1908), the official organ of the Federal Party. Though written in Spanish, it was "the first Filipino newspaper that recognized American sovereignty in the country, & encourages the people to be open to the American government."

Here, too, belongs Diario de Manila (1849-1896), whose contents the Editor describes as: "official matters, literary works, foreign chronicles, exportations, religious news, departures and arrival of boats." From 1895, it acquired a Sunday Supplement, which was "illustrated and very entertaining."

About El Ilocano (1889-1890), one observes that, contrary to the expectations raised by its title, it was a Spanish-Tagalog newspaper. The Editor describes its aim as "to bring science to the common people." It contained articles on Iluko history and geography, but also "letters from the Pope and church hierarchy... practical pieces of advice, government, mathematics, poetry." And, the Editor adds a detail which calls attention to its rarity at the time: "There is a section dedicated to women."

The Manililla (1889-1991) was a weekly magazine edited by Saturnino Sabadell, which today would be in category of "Lifestyle." It is described by the Catalogue Editor as "illustrated, comical and humorous," and containing "illustrations (which) are very eloquent of life in Manila at that time."

And La Estrella de Manila: diario de avisos y noticias (1848), a daily Spanish newspaper, carried, not just foreign and local news, but also "cultural activities in Manila," a science section, and a novel The Count of Monte Cristo by Alexander Dumas, serialized.

— Finally, there are the publications whose appeal might be to limited audience of specialist. For example, La Correspondencia Médica de Filipinas (1893-1894) seems to have tried to address the interests of both professional doctors and ordinary people or laymen who felt the need to be better informed about, for example, different sicknesses and proper treatment of these.

The Revista Farmacéutica de Filipinas (1893-1894), on the other hand, was the official organ of the Colegio de Farmacéuticos, and featured articles by its members, copies of articles by Europeans, and advertisements of pharmaceutical products.

The Spanish-language Boletin Oficial Agrícola de Filipinas,(1894-1896), has as "its main objective... to transmit the results of all scientific experiments done to improve farming in the Philippines." And it included, not just what one would expect- "cultivation of plants, farmer's health, experiments, statistics on agronomic season of all region", but also "rules on how to build wells and ovens..."

The English-language journal, The Philippine Journal of Science (1906-1947), edited by Richard Strong and H.D. McCaskey, published the results of research on general chemical and biological problems involving bacteriology and immunity, pathology, etiology, entomology, etc.

The Philippine Agricultural Review (1926-1935), published by the University of the Philippines, and edited by Bernabe Africa, et al., and then by Maximo Kalaw, contains mainly articles on a wide variety of disciplines, by scholars, i.e. professors of different universities.

There are several magazines of special interest to writers. The Philippine Magazine (1930-1941), edited by Verne E. Miller and the legendary A.V.H. Hartendorp, was where many writers in English first saw print.

The Philippine Free Press (1934-1941), which only ceased to exist in 2012, was founded in 1908, and edited by Dick R. McCulloch, which makes it the oldest English news magazine in the country. It included one short story and a poetry page per issue.

The Sunday Tribune Magazine (1939-1944) was edited by Francisco Icasiano, author of one of the earliest collections of essays in English, and, as the Catalogue Editor notes, it published short stories by the major writers in English of the time.

Thomasian writers should want to take a look at The Quill (1935), the annual yearbook of the UST Quill Literary Club. The Catalogue's Editor observes that it "produced excellent Filipino literature," using as example Paz Latorena's "As the Strength of Ten."

And of course the collection has early copies of Unitas, the University's scholarly journal, founded in 1923; and of the Varsitarian, the University's official student paper, founded in 1928, with Jose Villa Panganiban as its first editor.

Even before the end of the Age of Print had become a possibility, a collection such as this would have been considered extremely precious. Now – when what used to be unthinkable might actually be imminent – it is, quite simply, priceless.

One can only be grateful that the AVdR Heritage Library – and most particularly the Rev. Father Ángel Aparicio, O.P. – has undertaken this project. Amazingly, very few seem to be aware of it, including the members of the Thomasian community. It is the way of man to take for granted what is part of his everyday milieu. It remains for future generations to take full measure of the significance of what has been accomplished here.

Deals with medicine and surgery for the interest of professional doctors. Every number contains two sections: professional and popular medicine. Consists of 18 pages of which three are dedicated to medical advertisements. Its objectives are the expression of medical knowledge and the defense of professional interests, aside from serving as a venue for doctors to stay in touch with each other. The paper also tries to meet the needs of the masses so that people can be informed on medical matters. There are sections of original works about sicknesses and treatment of these. Also, the medical geography of the Philippines is thoroughly explained.

UST Archives: Num. 291-292 (Jan 1848)

This is a daily newspaper containing notices and news from the Philippines, Spain, Europe, and America. It is written in Spanish. It includes the following sections: Religious, Spanish News, Foreign News, Literary, Port Activities, Business, Notices, Announcements, Advertisements, Cultural Activities in Manila, Products for Sale, Current Prices of Commodities, an industrial section, a scientific section, political chronicles, and a serialized novel. Every issue includes the Count of Monte Cristo by Alexandre Dumas. The newspaper uses the idiom of the times with inconsistencies in spelling. Aside from news, the paper tries to make the reader enjoy poetry, novels and character sketches. Some articles included in this issue were taken from previously published articles; proper citation/acknowledgements given.

Clarification: The Spanish and foreign sections of the paper give many news that the people working in La Estrella de Manila got from many Spanish or international newspapers. They always acknowledge the original newspaper from where they got the information they give in the La Estrella. Even if those papers reached here with some months of delay, they arrived and were read. It is in good condition although the edges of the pages are brittle.

Note:

Also available in microfilm at the UST Archives; some images are dilapidated, hence, not accessible.

SUMARIO

Quica, descripcion de la lámina.—El pacto de sangre, crónica del país.—La muger, poesía.—Amor á vista de pájaro, norela.— La esperanza, parte literaria.—Teoria de Mr. Duran, parte cientifica.—Mossico.—Geroglifico.

Quica.

Su pretensiones de ningun género remite Quica su retrato, con el número de hoy, á nuestros lectores de la Hustracion.

—Pero ¿quién es esta Quica? preguntará alguno con estrañeza.

—¡Medrados estamos con tal pregunta!.. Quica és... Quica; «bien claro está» como dice D. Procopio en la zarzuela.

Si no os place, carísimos lectores, no le llameis Quea; reconocedla con el nombre de María, Romana, Jacoba ó el que mejor os agrade; pues á poco que os fijeis en el adjunto retrato,—vosotros los que habitais ó habeis vivido en el Archipiélago Filipino—comprenderéis que se trata de un ser que os es ú os ha sido muy conocido y harto familiar. Es el tipo de esa india jóven, sin la cual no puede pasar una familia medianamente acomodada; es el gran recurso para el hombre que vive solo, si no se ha de presentar en la sociedad con el ligero y vaporoso traje que cubrió á nuestro padre Adan en sus primitivos tiempos; es, en fin, la costurera.

—¿Y merece la costurera ocupar un lugar preferente en la Hustracion?

—¡Oh! sí, seguramente que sí: porque sobre ser una variedad especial entre los tostadores de sangre y apuradores de paciencia que se conocen con el nombre genérico de servidumbre doméstica, está ya siendo esta variedad tan rara y escasa, que á seguir al paso que vá su decrecimiento, concluirá por estinguirse, y bueno es que nos apresuremos á dejar memoria, al menos, de una clase tan útil como necesaria.

Quea es un bello tipo en su género; y la hemos elegido entre varias otras, porque, si bien adolece de los mismos defectos de la generalidad, inspira algun interés por su rostro agraciado; sus grandes ojos negros y rasgados, aun cuando sin travesura; su rica cabellera; cierta morbidez en sus formas, y mas aun que todo, porque á su carácter dulce, humilde y bondadoso, reune una cualidad recomendable: la de cuidar de su anciana madre con el esmero de una buena hija.

Cuando Quica vino al mundo le habian precedido cinco hermanos entre varones y hembras, si bien no todos gozaron por mucho tiempo de la ecsistencia. Hija de padres pobres, su nacimiento apenas fué señalado con demostracion alguna de regocijo, y á los ocho años se colocó en una casa grande, como dicen los indios para designar las familias bien acomodadas, y allí creció y fué desarrollándose, sirviendo de entretenimiento y no pocas veces de estorho á varios niños y niñas de su edad, con cortos años de diferencia, hijos de los señores de la casa.

A vueltas de no pocos pescozones y chinelazos, con sobrada razon unas veces y pagando las culpas de otros en las mas de las ocasiones, fué adquiriendo Quica una educación mista, resultante de los dos elementos de enseñanza que iban desarrollando su inteligencia. Por una parte, los hábitos y costumbres europeas de sus amos, y por otra el ejemplo, prácticas y consejos de lo restante de la servidumbre. Aprendió, pues, á coser y á mentir; á ser muy limpia para su cuerpo é indolente para el trabajo; se hizo presumida y descuidada; adquirió maneras sueltas y hasta cierto punto distinguidas para su clase, sin perder la falta de ley á sus bienhechores, y se hizo, en fin, un ser escepcional, característico, sui géneris, que solo tiene completa semejanza consigo mismo.

Quica contará unos 19 á 20 años de edad y ya su vida es una pequeña historia, con ribetes de novela y episodios de verde oseuro, como la mas caprichosa elucubración del novelista con faldas Jorge Sand.

A los doce años escasos la devolvió su ama al poder de sus padres, por no estar muy conforme con la intimidad con que trataba á su hijo mayor.

Desde aquella época cambió por completo la suerte de la pobre Quica. Sus padres la despojaron muy luego de las albajas y de las mejores ropas que le diera su ama, y hasta la entregaron en rehenes ó como garantía de veinte y cinco pesos que pidieron prestados. De esta especie de cautividad tuvo bastante maña para libertarse, portándose de tal modo que el prestamista dió por bien perdidos los veinte y cinco pesos y la que quitin.

Orgullosa y demasiado amiga de su libertad para entrar á servir de criada, y escasa de recursos y de habilidad bastante para abrir un taller en su casa, entró en el gremio de costureras á domicilio,

La Independencia became the most famous and most important paper of the Philippine Revolution. The first issue appeared on Sept. 3, 1899, and it continued to appear daily until 11 November 1900. Antonio Luna was its director, with Salvador Vivencio del Rosario as editor. The "refined expression and literary finesse" of the paper attracted readership and even caused some Spaniards to believe that traitorous Spaniards were writing and editing the paper. A selected group of journalists were the contributors, like: Fernando Ma. Guerrero, José Palma, Cecilio Apostol, León Ma. Guerrero, Epifanio de los Santos,

The journal was founded January 5, 1881 by Real Colegio de Agustinos Filipinos de Valladolid because of P. Tomás Cámara y de Castro'a initiative. Initially, the journal focused on missions of the Order of St. Augustine, but in 1887 the title was changed to La Ciudad de Dios. The journal increased the rate of publication, expanded the topics, opened new sections, reaffirmed its apologetic furor and boosted escurialenses issues. In 1928-1935, it merged with its sister journals in Spain and America, and appeared with the title of Religión y Cultura. In 1936, the journal used again the name of La Ciudad de Dios, which continues today. (Source: http://www.agustinosescorial.com/estudios-publicaciones/revistas/la-ciudad-dedios)

The Boletín Eclesiástico de Filipinas (BEF) is the official interdiocesan bulletin of Catholic Philippines and contains a detailed account of Papal documents and of the decisions & decrees of the Roman Congregations. The ff. are its predecessors in the Philippines: (1) Boletín Eclesiástico del Arzobispado de Manila which started its publication in 1876 by Archbishop of Manila Msgr. Payo; and (2) Boletín Oficial de Arzobispado de Manila in 1892 which disappeared when Spanish sovereignty in the Philippines ended.

The University of Santo Tomas took charge of the publication as per request of the bishops since Msgr. Guglielmo Piani, then the Apostolic Delegate of the Holy See in the Philippines, noted the absence of an official ecclesiastical bulletin.

Prior to 1960, the language of the Boletín was always in Spanish, except the official documents which were published in English. Today, the Boletin is still published bi-monthly by the University of Santo Tomas. It contains an editorial, documentation, features, canon law section, history section and homiletics (Source: http://boletineclesiastico.ust.edu.ph/).

With the change of regime in the Philippines at the end of the nineteenth century a new press, contrary to the interests of the previous rulers started a phase of propaganda against Spain and against religious orders that had until then evangelized and educated the Filipino people.

To counteract this propaganda the Archbishop of manila, Most Reverend Sr. Dn. Bernardino Nozaleda proposed to the authorities of the province of the Holy Rosary, and in particular to the Dominican professors of the University of Santo Tomas the foundation of a newspaper that could respond to the criticisms and calumnies and to explain the truth to the Filipinos.

He advanced the amount of two thousand (2,000) pesos, and the university entrusted the task of Director to Fr. Valentín Marín, O.P. and nominal director, the illustrious Filipino journalist Sr. D. Manuel Ravago.

This new publication was given the name Libertas, in honour of the famous Encyclical of Leo XIII. It was received with scorn by the local press, but little by little the new newspaper was able to establish a firm hold owing to the wisdom and knowledge of its contributors who advanced solid arguments in the defence of the traditional catholic values and ideas. Under the direction of Fr. Valentín Marín and Fr. Serapio Tamayo Libertas quieted the enemies of the friars.

It is notable the position of Libertas regarding a bill presented to the assembly in the years 1911 and 1916 about the dissolution of the marriage bond. Unfortunately, and despite the efforts of our newspaper the bill was carried on and approved in March 11, 1917.

One can find in Libertas articles very interesting for the history of the Philippines and of the Dominicans, such as the origins of the Aglipayan schism in 1902, the canonical coronation of the image of Our Lady of the Holy Rosary, the inauguration of the first Philippine assembly in 1907, the third centenary of the foundation of the University of Santo Tomas, the eruption of Taal Volcano in 1911, the establishment of the Philippine Senate, etc.

One can also find articles of deep theological reflection, juridical and canonical issues and historical discussions: on the origins, development and significance of the Katipunan; about the Obras Pias; about the Aglipaianism and the different sects that were starting to proliferate in the Philippines; very interesting chronicles about China, Japan, Italy, France, Spain; biographies of prelates, necrologies of the religious people; pontifical and diocesan documents; ethnographical studies on the peoples of the cordilleras of Northern and Central Luzon, etc.

Several Dominican priests rendered their enthusiastic and scientific service to Libertas under different pseudonyms: FF. Valentín Marín, Francisco Marín Solá, Serapio Tamayo, Manuel Arellano, Manuel Fernandez, Francisco Cubeñas, Juan Ylla, Julio Vicente, Vicente Blasco. Equally worthy of mention are the illustrious journalists Manuel Ravago, Francisco Varona, Flavio Zaragoza, Tirso de Irureta-Goyena, Leoncio Aranda, Federico Calero, Eliseo Hervas, etc.

This newspaper served the Philippine church for eighteen years. During World War I, Fr. Marín published a series of articles, under the pseudonym name Sarmaticus that stirred up a wide interest owing to competence of the writer. However, since these writings showed pro Germanic sympathy they attracted the enmity and revenge of masons and Frenchmen. With the entry of the United States in the conflict Fr. Marín stopped the publication of the series, but unfortunately his enemies had already promised the suppression of the newspaper.

Sometime later, on the occasion of the publication in one of his columns of the fourteen points of Wilson in smaller characters than the answer of the German President that appeared at its side in bigger letters, the American veterans presented tumultuously to Mr. Francis Burton Harrison, General Governor of the Philippines a petition to prohibit the publication of the newspaper. Shortly after, the irrevocable decision arrived to the office of the Father Provincial of the Holy Rosary, through the Spanish consul in Manila. Next day, January 31, 1918 Libertas closed its glorious career with a farewell to its readers.

Fig. 33. Last issue of Libertas (January 30, 1918) (see UST Publications entry # 17)

Fr. Juan Ylla, author of this summary, concludes: since then there has not been any other catholic publication in this country that could claim such a dignified place as the one achieved by Libertas, without vacillations or interruptions for eighteen years. (Villarroel, 2012)

"Official organ of St. Tomas medical faculty and UST Medical Association is the "Journal of Medicine", a monthly publication of science papers written by medical men. The Journal dates from 1921, when the medical students of Santo Tomas together with the Pharmacy students published the magazine "Alma Mater". This magazine, however was shortlived because in the same year, Very Fr. Acisclo Alfaguene, O.P., Rector of the University halted its publication as his administration decided to allow only one publication in the whole university, the "Unitas", intended to be a joint publication of all the students and faculty members in all colleges and in that way promote their unity...

The Faculty of Medicine and Surgery, however, did not put its own (publication) until 1940 when it finally came out with the Journal of Medicine, inspired by Rev. Fr. Jose Cuesta, O.P. who was then the Medicine Regent, and Dean Bonifacio Mencias. First editor-in-chief was Bonifacio Mencias.

The Pacific war suspended publication of the Journal but it came out again upon liberation, and has since then come out bimonthly. The publication was founded for the purpose of serving as the official medium in which articles, lectures and papers of medical men, especially St. Tomas own medical professors, may be published, Medical students find the Journal of practical help to them in their class work as well as ward work." The Varsitarian, the official student paper of the University had included a Spanish section, Página Cervantina, which later changed into El Universitario, and under this title it became a full-fledged independent magazine in 1936. But two years later it adopted the name V.E. initial letters of Voz Estudiantil, which lasted until 1969." (Villarroel, 1977)

EL RESUMEN

SUPLEMENTO DEL 5 DE ENERO DE 1892.

CONFERENCIA ENTRE EL

EXCHO. SENOR DON BULOGIO DESPUJOLS

Y "JUAN TOTOO." (PASCUAL H. POBLETE.)

ANIMADOS por el patriótico lla-mamiento que la nueva digna primera Autoridad de estas Islas hizo á los hijos de las mismas, al dirigirles por primera vez la palabra como su Gober-nador General, fuimos el domingo úl-timo, por la mañana, al Real Palacio de Malacañang, dispuestos á tener co. S. E. si nos concedia, una entrecon S. E., si nos concedia, una entre-vista en que, aprovechando los cono-cimientos que tenemos de nuestro país, pudiéramos contribuir con nuespars, puteranto controlor con muestras escasas fuerzas á satisfacer los elevados deseos manifestados por el Exemo. Sr. Conde de Caspe al pueblo filipino, de conocer las necesidades del país, cuyo gobierno le ha sido confiado.

He aquí el resultado de dicha entrevista que con la proverbial benevolencia de S. E., el Gobernador General, nos fué concedida al momento, y la que para mayor claridad referire-mos en forma dialogada, procurando transmitir al papel lo más fielmente posible las levantadas frases de S. E., posible las levantadas frases de S. E., à quién pedimos de antemano perdón si algún error padeciera nuestra frágil memoria.

Juan Toroo.—Respondiendo Excelentismo Sr., al laudable llamamiento que V. E. hace á los hijos de este pais, por más que yo soy el último de ellos, he creido conveniente ponerme incondicionalmente á sus órdenes, asegurándole que puede estar firmemente persuadido de que, con la más ingénua sinceridad, le dire sin ambajes ni rodeos, todo cuanto atañe á las costumbres y manera de ser de estos habitantes, con quienes desde el más rico hasta el más pobre, tengo relaciones más ó menos intimas.

Su EXCELENCIA.—Me alegro de que un indígena, con filial confianza, venga á mí, para ponerme al corriente de sus necesidades y justas aspiraciones. Siento por este país y por todos sus hijos una gran simpatia, y estoy dispuesto á hacer todo cuanto esté á mi alcance para el progreso, bienestar y prosperidad de esta lejana porción de España. Verdad es que el término de tres años de permanencia en estas Islas es muy reducido para llevar á cabo empresas que, como las que se necesitan para levantar é Filipinas de su postración estoy decidido á acometer, sin embargo con o me desalienta, antes al contrario, con todo el vigor del alma de que es capaz un hombre que desae el bien de sus semejantes, he de trabajar activamente para la realización de los nobles ideales tue me animan. Antes de venir á estas Islas durante largos meses, he estudiado y leido con afán su historia, sus libros y sus periódicos. He pensado mucho y sigo pensando en la manera mejor de fomentar la agricultura, la ganadería y la industria, y de colocar al comercio nacional á la altura à que debe estar en esta privilegiada tierra española, pero, para ello, es necesario que el país me ayude y se ayude á sí mismo, facilitando mi acción.

Just Tortoo.—Me temo, Excelentismo Señor, que el país me ayude y se ayude á sí mismo, facilitando mi acción.

Just Tortoo.—Me temo, Excelentismo Señor, que el país me ayude y se ayude á sí mismo, facilitando mi acción.

Just Tortoo.—Me temo, Excelentismo Señor, que el país me ayude y se ayude sí la hatoridad y tardará un poco en enterarse de las paternales miras de V. E. Así por ejemplo, después de haber leido yo con vivisima satisfacción los dos decretos de V. E. de Obras públicas, me temo que los pueblos no se enteren bien de la invitación paternal que les dirije al final del segundo decreto y que la prueba ó en sayo que V. E. intenta no resulte tan satisfactoria como fuera de desear. No lo estrañe V. E.

S. E.—Efectivamente: habiende vita que quedaba en remanente crédito bastante de los gastos presupuestados en obras núblicas, con toda urrencia, y porciona de la como de la distraca y porcionar a como fuera de desear.

S. E. —Erectivamente: nationale visto que quedaba en remanente crédito bastante de los gastos presupuestados en obras públicas, con toda urgencia, y poniendo en juego los hilos telegráficos, he pedido datos á los señores Gobernadores de provincias é Ingenieros del nanores de provincias e ingeneros ue ramo, datos que una vez reunidos, he acordado el decreto descentralizador que V. habrá leido en la Gaceta de Manila, esperando que el país sabrá apreciar en lo que vale este primer paso que, aunque insignificante relativamente, por tratarse de pequeñas obras, podrá ser la base de la vida propia de cada pueblo, y por lo tanto de la creación de sus Ayuntamientos, en la cual se debe respetar su tradición.

Jusa Toroo.—Temo, Excelentísimo señor, que por la ignorancia de la mayor parte de los pueblos de Filipinas, no de esta medida el resultado que es de esperar. No ignorará V. E. que, en muchos pueblos de Filipinas, se desconoce por completo el castellano, y siendo esto así, claro está que no sabrán interpretar muy bien su benefica intención, y si por el fracaso de esa primera prueba dejase V. E. de seguir adelante en sus medidas descentralizadoras, nunca contaremos más con otra Autoridad que lleve á cabo tan grande obra.

S. E.—No creo que fracase esta primera prueba, porque confío en la buena voluntad y patriotismo de los señores Curas Párrocos de los pueblos y vecinos ilustrados residentes en los mismos, quienes, tengo la intima persuasión de que darán á conocer mis propósitos á los que no entiendan el castellano; mas, si por desgracia, me equivoco, volveré á insistir en lo mismo, pero ayudado ya con la experiencia que habré tenido esta vez.

Estudiaré también la forma y manera conveniente de difundir aquí por todos los medios el idioma castellano; poniendo por de pronto en planta un sistema que creo dará muy buenos resultados para este fin, en cuya ejecución espero me ayudará V. como persona conocedora de estos dialectos. (Y aquí desarrolló todo un plan de enseñanza del castellano, que el que escribestas líneas no se atreve á hacer público hasta que S. E. por si mismo lo revele). Juas Toroo.—Ya he dicho á V. E., que me pongo completamente à sus órdenes y puede disponer de mis cortos conocimientos como mejor le parezca.

S. E.—Gracias. Y hablando de otra cosa, ¿conoce V. personas que se dediquen á la construcción?

S. E.—Gracias, Y hablando de otra cosa, ¿conoce V. personas que se dediquen á la construcción?

On February 15, 1889, the Filipino propagandists were able to get together behind a new publication which they called La Solidaridad, and which for it's more than five years of existence became the principal organ of the propaganda movement. It was founded on February 15, 1889 and existed up to November 15, 1895. Its first editor was Graciano López-Jaena but was soon succeeded by Marcelo H. del Pilar. La Solidaridad was a political propaganda paper with a liberal, reformist orientation dedicated to the task of fighting reaction in all its forms.

Some of the Filipino contributors were: Marcelo H. del Pilar (Plaridel), Dr. Jose Rizal (Laon Laan), Mariano Ponce (Naning, Kalipulo, Tigbalang), Antonio Luna (Taga Ilog), Jose Ma. Panganiban (Jomapa), Dr. Pedro Paterno, Antonio Ma. Regidor, Isabelo delos Reyes, Eduardo de Lete and Jose Alejandrino (Constantino, 1975).
